Editorial: Michael Kamen .................................................................1

Improvements in Student Achievement and Science Process Skills Using Environmental Health Science Problem-Based Learning Curricula: Chris Keil, Jodi Haney, and Jennifer Zoffel .................................................................3

How does a curriculum intervention that anchors instruction to the study of urban coyote behavior affect student learning? Jonathan G. Way ........................................54

Looking Inside a Student’s Mind: Can An Analysis of Student Concept Maps Measure Changes in Environmental Literacy? T. Meagher ..................................................85

Technology-Integrated Project-Based Approach in Science Education: A Qualitative Study of In-Service Teachers’ Learning Experiences: Sumita Bhattacharyya and Kakali Bhattacharya .................................................................113

The “Chemistry Mafia”: The Social Structure of Chemistry Majors in Lab: Dawn I. Del Carlo and George M. Bodner .................................................................139

Teaching Controversial Socio-Scientific Issues in Biology and Geology Classes: A Case Study: Pedro Reis and Cecilia Galvão .................................................................162